Description

Ukraine has a centralized system of government. Although currently Ukraine has been involved in the process of decentralization, the quality management area at the local level is very low, competences of local representative bodies are weak, and the civic participation in decision-making on public affairs in some areas is completely absent. Partly is this condition caused by passivity and lack of citizen interest in the community development, but mostly the cause can be found in the noticeable lack of experience and know - how. Lacking experience with the reformation process also shows a lack of cooperation between government and non-governmental sector. Due to the decentralization process it is essential to strengthen this cooperation, citizen participation and public control of rural areas in particular where the competences of diplomatic missions during decentralization grow extensively. From previous experience in this field of cooperation during the cross-linking of activities and transfer of know-how from Slovakia to Ukraine at the level of NGOs have specific implemented activities proved to be the most effective, particularly practical skills training from different fields and also providing of the assistance to local communities in the form of micro-grant schemes. In the context stated above, the overall project goal is to contribute to the efficiently functioning state administration and civil society development in the Carpathian part of Western Ukraine through transfer of the Slovak experience. The target group are mainly young people (under 35 years) who have a genuine interest in democratization of the society in which they live and in the creation of the potential sustainability of a positive development of civic participation in public affairs, representatives of non-governmental organizations in rural areas and community representatives in the four border areas of Western Ukraine - Zakarpattia, Lviv, Ivano -Frankivsk and Chernivtsi region. Specific project goals are: 1. Direct involvement of the rural population in governance in the targeted territory of Ukraine using the experience from Slovakia and establishing close bilateral (SK - UA) cooperation. • Activity 1.1: Kick - off meeting - space for SK - UA management meeting and meeting of
