Description

Project Benefit – Everyone Rescues an African, named after the eponymous theatre production, brings an innovative and interactive method of learning for university students. Theatre production, which is the foundation of this project, was successfully staged last year directly pinpointed the issue of development aid in Slovakia. Our aim is to bring this production to univeristy school students in Slovak towns as an educational platform within their studies. Power of young artists has a great potential to affect a generation of students through the topic of development aid, add to its popularity and on various scenarios show various attitudes of our immature society towards the topic. This project is in its methodology focused on support of active learning and reflection, it emphasises diversity and respect of others and contributes to clarification of priorities within the students in global context. It has an ambition to offer teachers and management of universities an unconventional method of implementation of issues of global development education to individual lessons and put this hot topic on the same level as environmental issues or ecology.
